CONTRACTOR WITH PAYROLL OF $3000 KIDNAPED IN CAR

Three Armed Negroes Force Walter Kirk to Drive Them to Kinloch Park in the County.

MEN TAKE MONEY BUT LEAVE AUTO

Victim of Robbery Had Just Arrived at Hotel Saum Building to Pay Off Workmen.

A $3000 payroll was stolen at 10:15 a. m. today by Negroes who kidnaped Walter Kirk as he stepped his automobile in front of the $1,000,000 Hotel Saum, under construction at Grand boulevard and Castleman avenue.

Kirk, who is 32 years old and a member of the contracting firm of Frank Kirk & Sons, had taken the money from the Chouteau Trust Co. to pay the workmen.

Forced Back Into Car.

Kirk's brother, Charles Kirk, who is a member of the contracting firm, is licensed to carry a revolver, but today remained on the job while Walter Kirk went to the bank for the payroll, expecting to aid in distributing the pay.

A bricklayer saw Walter Kirk's automobile pull up to the curb, heading west on Castleman. Two Negroes walked up. As Kirk started to alight one pushed him back and got in beside him. The other jumped on the running board and the automobile moved away westward, and then turned south, eventually with Kirk still at the wheel under compulsion.

Brother in Pursuit.

The workman ran to find Charles Kirk, who got his automobile and followed the robbers. He drove westward to Tower Grove Park and threatened the drivers between the highway and Grand, but had a return without picking up a note.

More than two hours later Walter Kirk telephoned his brother and told him he had been released and allowed to keep his automobile. He then drove to the hotel to meet him at the bank where they drew the payroll and took it to the building to distribute it.

Walter Kirk told police the robbers, both armed, forced him to drive to Kinloch Park, a Negro settlement in St. Louis County, about four miles west of the city limits. There, he related, they alighted, taking the money, and ordered, "Now you beat it back to town and don't try to follow us."

This was the thirteenth payroll robbery in St. Louis this year, and increased the total amount thus stolen to $17,420.

GOV. AL SMITH'S DAUGHTER A BRIDE

MRS. JOHN ADAMS WARNER.

1500 AT WEDDING OF DAUGHTER OF GOV. AL SMITH

She Is Married to Major John A. Warner, Superintendent of New York State Police.

WEDDING PRESENTS VALUED AT $350,000

Political, Industrial and Social Leaders From All Over Country Among Guests of Governor.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
ALBANY, N. Y., June 5.—With 1500 guests crowding the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, and thousands of friends and curious standing outside, Miss Emily Smith, 24-year-old daughter of Gov. Al Smith, and Maj. John Adams Warner, superintendent of the New York State Police, were married at 11 o'clock this morning by Cardinal Hayes of New York.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Gov. Smith, wore a veil of rose point lace belonging to the Countess Byron Kuhn de Prorok, nee Miss Alice Kenney. Miss Smith was the fifth bride to wear it. She was attended by her sister, Catherine.

The wedding ceremony preceded the nuptial mass. As the conclusion of the mass, the bride and bridegroom passed under an arch of steel formed by troops and a military escort, and were driven to the Executive Mansion, where the wedding breakfast was served.

Among the more noted guests, many of whom reached the city last night and crowded the hotel to overflowing, were George Trevelyan, Democratic political leader of Illinois and senatorial nominee; former Gov. Slizer of New Jersey; Mayor Walker of New York; Mayor Hague of Jersey City; Gov. Harry A. Moore of New Jersey; William H. Todd, millionaire ship builder from Brooklyn; and James J. Riordan, president of the United States Trucking Corporation, who came on Vincent Astor's yacht, one of the New York East Side also were invited.

Gifts Overflowed Mansion.

The number of wedding presents passed the counting point. The second and third floors of the executive mansion were filled with the overflowing. The overflow threatened to engulf the small rooms of the modest home where Maj. Warner and his bride will set up housekeeping after the honeymoon. The latest estimate on the value of the gifts is $350,000. Some idea of the extent and nature of the gifts may be gained from the following incomplete list:

Twenty-five chests of silver, 50 sets of imported china, 15 sets of gold decorated china, flat silver and candlesticks from Crichton's, London; a diamond and sapphire brooch, a diamond and emerald bracelet, two diamond bracelets, a diamond earring, a sapphire bow, a silver bowl from the Court of Appeals, a gold bag containing 50 $20 gold pieces, an original "Chicago" picture, an original etching by Charles Dana Gibson, the gift of the artist; clocks, picnic sets, silver service plates, a dozen Oriental rug books, a set of old English silver from a Dublin castle, 25 lamps, a Chippendale chair, tapestries of great value, a combination radio and phonograph and a patchwork quilt, the gift of a State trooper.

Friends Demanded Big Wedding.

The Governor, it is believed, would have been content to have had a simpler wedding for his daughter but his friends would have none of such a plan. The eloquent, precluded any chance of the vast Smith following expressing the fullest of its loyalty.

Writers, artists, financiers, musicians, politicians, public officials, army and navy officers, clergymen and rabbis, persons of social prominence and men and women of humble aspects of life, were joined in the immense list of invited guests.

AMERICANS POOR SPENDERS IN THE RIVIERA RESORTS

Russian Travelers Most Generous and Germans and Egyptians Are Next in Order.

PARIS, June 5.—Individually, American visitors along the Riviera are "tightwads" in comparison with persons of other nationalities who seek enjoyment and rest in that salubrious region. As good spenders, the Americans are ranked fourth, coming after the Russians, Germans and Egyptians. British visitors are placed fifth. Leading hotel and restaurant proprietors along the Riviera are authority for this statement.

"Americans and British are so numerous on the Riviera that their total expenditures amount to more than half of all the money left there by foreigners," says a writer who interviewed the purveyors of food and frolic. "But it is a myth that they are the most generous of the visitors."

The Russian are in minor circumstances, when they appear in public life, are the freest spenders of all foreigners. During the past year, Germans have occupied many luxurious hotel suites in Nice, Cannes and Monte Carlo, the hotel proprietors consider them excellent guests.

MENTAL DISEASES ON INCREASE

Total in Hospitals Gains 553 Per Cent in 43 Years.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—Patients in hospitals for mental disease show a striking increase in number in each census year between 1904 and 1923, the Census Bureau announced today in a summary presenting the more important results of its latest enumeration. During the 43-year period from 1880 to 1923 the number increased from 40,942 to 267,617, or 553.6 per cent, while the number of patients per 100,000 of population increased from 8.6 to 24.5, or three times as many in 1923 as in 1880.

The increase, Census Bureau officials declare, must not be taken as indicating a corresponding increase in the occurrence of mental disease, since it is in part to be accounted for by the more general use of hospital care in recent years.

HUSBAND SHOT BY PRINCE, BARONESS TAKES OWN LIFE

Baron Klinger, With Bullet in Lungs, Fires Shotgun at Russian Nobleman, Shattering His Arm.

SHOOTING OCCURS IN AUSTRIAN FOREST

Affair Resulted From Infatuation at Italian Resort; Woman Was Mother of Three Young Children.

VIENNA, June 5.—Advices from Raab, Lower Austria, today said both Baron Klinger and the Russian Prince, Cyril Vladimir Orloff, were in a serious condition in consequence of Wednesday's shooting affair, which allegedly arose from attentions paid by the Prince to the Baron's beautiful wife. The Baroness shot and killed herself when she learned of the affair.

Surgeons have extracted the bullet from the Baron's lung, and his condition is described as "not hopeless." The Prince's right arm was shattered and will be amputated.

Met Prince in Italy.

The high social position of the actors in the tragedy has resulted in every possible exertion to keep the details of the affair from the public.

Prince Orloff, who is 22 years old, met the Baroness at Merano, Italy, last summer, and became infatuated. When she returned home he made a visit to the castle. Returning there again on Wednesday of this week he was told that the Baron was hunting in the forest, and followed him.

According to the police account the Prince asked the Baron to surrender faith on the part of his wife, as he wished to marry her. The Baron ordered the Prince away, whereupon the latter drew a gun and fired. The Baron, wounded in the lung, raised his shotgun and fired, shattering the Prince's right arm.

The men were removed to the hospital. Gendarmes reported the case to the district judge, who summoned the Baroness to court Thursday to give evidence. The Baroness said she did not appear in court, retired to her bedroom and next morning was found. She leaves three children, 9, 7 and 3 years old.

An unconfirmed report has it that Orloff and Klinger went to the forest purposely to fight a duel. The Vienna police say they believe Prince Orloff is really Baron Orloff.

A bullet-proof cage in the Lee avenue street car sheds prevented a hold up last night for the second time when a snappily dressed young man entered and asked the cashier, William Segelhorst, of 3817A Carter avenue, if a book and papers lost on a Grand boulevard car had been turned in.

"I'll look," said the cashier, and turned away.

"Stick 'em up," shouted the young man, thrusting two revolvers through the cage aperture. Segelhorst dropped to the floor out of range. The robber fired one ineffectual shot and fled.

Text of Grand Jury Report On the Rutherford Case

THE final report today of the grand jury, which returned indictments in its investigation of the Rutherford murder case, follows:

"The grand jury for the April term, 1926, is about to end its labors by reason of the expiration of this term of court.

"While the desired investigations have not been completed, the shortness of time makes it necessary for any additional investigations to be made by another grand jury.

"As is well known to the Court and the public, His Excellency, Honorable Sam A. Baker, Governor of Missouri, directed Honorable North T. Gentry, Attorney-General, to appear before the grand jury and conduct certain investigations, either in person or by his assistant, The Attorney-General and his assistant, Honorable Arthur V. Lashly, have been with the grand jury now for the past ten days, and a large number of witnesses have been examined. The grand jury desires to express its appreciation of the services rendered by these gentlemen, who have labored diligently in the interest of the enforcement of our law.

"The indictments returned by the grand jury at this term speak for themselves; no further comment is necessary regarding them.

"Some citizens of St. Louis and some of the press thereof have asked questions and made suggestions regarding words of commendation or criticism by the grand jury of certain of our judicial officers; but the grand jury declines to make any finding or comment thereon for the reason that Section 1, Article VII, of the Constitution of Missouri places jurisdiction over such officers exclusively with the General Assembly of Missouri.

"From the investigations, the grand jury learns that there is a practice among some of the judges of the court to place jurisdiction over such officers exclusively with the General Assembly of Missouri.

"The grand jury also desires to call the attention of the public to the fact that the grand jury wishes to express its appreciation to the Court, the Clerk and Deputies, the Sheriff and Deputies, Chief of Police and those associated with him, for their co-operation in the discharge of the duties connected with the labors of this grand jury."

CONSPIRACY TO OBSTRUCT JUSTICE IS ALLEGED

W. W. Henderson, Verne Lacy and John Rutherford Accused With the Others in Final Report on Inquiry Into Murder Case Disposition.

PENALTY IS JAIL, $500 FINE, OR BOTH

Work of Present Grand Jury Completed and New Panel Will Continue Inquiry Into Circuit Attorney's Office.

An indictment charging six men, Circuit Attorney Sidener included, with conspiracy to "pervert and obstruct justice" in the Rutherford murder case, was returned this morning in Judge Mix's court by the grand jury.

The indictment, drawn in the Attorney-General's office at Jefferson City, and under consideration for four days, names the three who were indicted on other charges earlier in the week, and three others, as follows:

Circuit Attorney Sidener, who moved acceptance of manslaughter plea and imposition of $500 fine in Rutherford case.

A. Samuel Bender, candidate for nomination for Circuit Judge, who had dual role of special prosecutor and damage-suit lawyer.

John Rutherford of Pine Bluff, Ark., who admits having paid more than $14,500 to "arrange matters" so that his brother Allen would not go to prison.

W. W. Henderson, former Probate Judge, chief counsel for Allen Rutherford.

Verne R. G. Lacy, former assistant Circuit Attorney and associate counsel for Rutherford.

William Geist, record clerk in Circuit Attorney's office.

The offense charged is a misdemeanor, punishable on conviction by a jail term up to six months, or fine up to $500, or both.

No Censure of Mix.

As was told exclusively in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, the grand jury's final report did not censure Judge Mix for his part in the Rutherford case. In this connection the report stated that some citizens and some of the press of the city have asked questions and made suggestions regarding words of commendation or criticism by the grand jury of certain judicial officers. "But the grand jury declines to make any finding or comment thereon," the report adds, "for the reason that Section 1, Article VII, Constitution of Missouri, places jurisdiction over such officers exclusively with the General Assembly of Missouri."

The action of the Constitution referred to in the grand jury report, provides that Circuit Judges and other State officers are "liable to impeachment for high crimes or misdemeanors, and for misconduct, habits of drunkenness, or oppression in office."

It is followed by a section providing that the power of impeachment lies solely in the House of Representatives in the Legislature, and that all impeachments shall be tried in the Senate.

The grand jury condemns the practice "among some of the courts of St. Louis" to accept blindly the recommendation of the prosecuting officer for the sentence of persons who plead guilty. "The Court may be very easily imposed upon, the grand jury believes."

The manner of preparation and service of subpoenas is criticized. The grand jury believes that the preparation of subpoenas should be the duty of the Circuit Attorney, who would be held responsible for such matters.

SIEGEL TELLS OF EFFORTS TO FIX RUTHERFORD CASE

Relates to Attorney-General Details of Conference in Henderson's Office With John Rutherford and Bender.

SENT WORD HE WAS "READY TO TALK"

Admits Discussing Case With Judge Frey, Sidener and Geist—Talked Often With Bender.

Joseph Siegel and Martin Adler, whose part in the Rutherford murder case is regarded as the key to the conspiracy to "pervert and obstruct justice," for which the grand jury has placed six men under indictment, made enlightening admissions to Attorney-General Gentry yesterday.

From Siegel the reluctant acknowledgment was drawn that he had attended a conference at which John Rutherford, W. A. Henderson, chief of the Rutherford counsel, and A. Samuel Bender, who had the dual role of special prosecutor and defense attorney, representing Mrs. Tucker, were present.

He admitted under cross-examination by the Attorney-General which took place in a private anteroom of the grand jury chambers, that the entire scheme to fix William A. Henderson, slayer of Jack Tucker, majestic hotel bellboy, was discussed at this conference.

Meeting in Henderson's Office. The meeting was held in Henderson's law office and had been arranged in a previous interview which Siegel had with Henderson and Bender. "Come back tomorrow," Henderson told Siegel, "John Rutherford will be here from Arkansas and we can talk this matter over."

John Rutherford, according to Siegel, informed him and Bender—Siegel is rather certain that Martin Adler was with him at the second conference—on the morning of June 3, that Mrs. Tucker would not receive a cent from the Rutherford unless the second degree murder case against Allen Rutherford "was fixed up."

In these words Siegel was given to understand that the State must drop criminal prosecution of Allen before Mrs. Tucker would receive her $5000 and A. Samuel Bender his fee of $1000.

Siegel denied to the Attorney-General that he or Adler were promised money for their help in "arranging matters." He insisted that he was moved to carry out Rutherford's wishes only through a soft-hearted feeling for Mrs. Tucker. He said Adler was actuated by the same motive.

Attorney-General Gentry, with this much of Siegel's story told, caused him to admit that he and Adler had worked together in negotiations. They went to see Aaron Waldheim together. Waldheim called Judge Frey over the telephone and arranged for Siegel to go for a hearing for Adler and Siegel, who then "saw the judge," Siegel told the talking. He told Judge Frey that he "understood there was a chance for Mrs. Tucker to get some money from the Rutherford."

He mentioned to the judge that the Circuit Attorney probably would recommend a $500 fine as Rutherford's punishment. However, he said, "someone else is taking care of that end."

Siegel admitted talking with Bender many times about the case, advising with him about steps in the "negotiations," although, thus far he will not admit that Bender told him to see Judge Frey or William Geist, chief clerk in Sidener's office, or the Circuit Attorney himself. Siegel has said, however, that he saw the judge, Geist and Sidener about the case.

Ready to Talk. While Gentry was drawing from Siegel this information the grand jury waited yesterday afternoon to bring in its final report and return the conspiracy indictment. As first drawn Joseph Siegel had been included among those to be indicted. Learning that he was under the shadow of indictment as one of the conspirators, Siegel through his attorney, Randolph Laughlin, sent word to the Attorney-General that he was "ready to talk." Gentry, however, did not purpose to send Siegel before the grand jury until he was convinced as to the truth of Siegel's revelations and their value to the State.

Gentry remains unconvinced that Siegel has told the entire story. Accordingly, he did not permit him to testify before the grand jury yesterday, but decided to try again this morning in an ante-room conference to learn the whole truth of Siegel's part in the case.

During the forenoon Gentry decided not to permit Siegel to appear before the grand jury and the conspiracy indictment was returned in court, with no mention of Siegel.

Nevertheless, Siegel's admissions thus far are regarded as clinching

the argument of Gentry that the dickerings to free Rutherford amounted to a conspiracy to "pervert and obstruct justice."

Through the fragment of Siegel's story now in hand the State thinks it has strengthened its conspiracy case. Henderson is mentioned again as having taken direct part in the maneuverings to free Rutherford. Hitherto the only thing which connected him with the negotiations was Verne R. C. Lacy's statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter that Henderson had attended one of the private conferences he had with Judge Mix. Rutherford is placed, by Siegel's admission, squarely in the light of a schemer, who told Bender and Siegel that they must see the criminal case against Henderson before he would pay Bender's client any money. Siegel also has implicated Bender in stating that he attended the conference at which the whole scheme was discussed.

Bender, as special prosecutor, ostensibly was working to further a vigorous prosecution of Allen Rutherford. Siegel's story shows that from the start of the case Bender was dickerings with the Rutherford for a money settlement.

While Siegel has been withdrawn from the conspiracy prosecution temporarily, this by no means indicates that he is to be given the chance to tell the whole truth to Gentry in conferences and if the Attorney-General is satisfied as to the veracity and value of his story, he will be allowed to testify for the State.

The talk Gentry had with Martin Adler, Siegel's companion in the negotiations, was productive of little. Adler had already testified before the grand jury and was recalled twice to testify. He last appeared yesterday afternoon. In talking with Adler the Attorney-General was handicapped by the witness' bad physical condition. Adler complained of lasses of memory, heart attacks, toothaches whenever the questioning reached an important point.

He admitted having talked with Bender since he first appeared before the grand jury. He said he went to have a cup of coffee together.

Memory Failed Him. "What did you talk about?" Adler was asked.

Adler held his head in his hands and moaned. "My memory fails me," he told the Attorney-General. "I have a very bad head. I have been seeing a doctor."

He said, finally, that he could remember nothing about which he had talked with Bender.

Gentry asked him if he had been paid for his services to the Rutherford and Bender in helping to "arrange matters." He denied that he had received a cent. He was asked if Joe Siegel had been paid anything.

"If I thought Joe had got any money I would wish to win him," he said.

The evident intent of Siegel and Adler to shield Bender cropped out many times during Gentry's efforts to discover just what their relations with the lawyer were. It is known that Siegel, acting as the friend of the family after Jack Tucker was shot by Allen Rutherford, engaged Bender as Mrs. Tucker's lawyer. They have been conferring together constantly at the Majestic Hotel, where both reside, as does Adler. But whenever the cross-examination bore upon what Bender had said to them or what they had said to Bender, they suffered lapses of memory.

When trouble started Siegel engaged Abe Frumberg as his attorney. Frumberg is one of the lawyers representing Bender. Then, Siegel's case was transferred to Randolph Laughlin, one of Frumberg's law partners. Why Laughlin should have suggested that Siegel go before the grand jury and tell a story which might implicate Bender, who is being defended by one of Laughlin's firm, was a situation which Gentry solved in short order. He did not permit Siegel to go before the grand jury.

The Attorney-General regards Siegel and Adler as exceedingly important witnesses, from whom other disclosures may come. It is felt that they were used by the Rutherford counsel and Bender as go-betweens in negotiations with the Circuit Attorney's office. Through them the State hopes to trace the origin of the report made to the Court that the State's witnesses were missing, on which the conspiracy indictments are based. The State plans to present the picture of a group of men impressing upon the people of St. Louis and the people of the State of Missouri, "The grand jury is now discharged."

The grand jury then left the courtroom, having terminated its period of service, and leaving completed in 16 days the inquiry of the Rutherford murder case, which Gov. Baker had ordered it to make. This investigation has resulted in the indictment of the Circuit Attorney on three counts, the indictment of A. Samuel Bender on two counts, the indictment of John Rutherford on two counts and single indictments against Henderson, Lacy and Geist.

Sidener and Bender in Court. Only Sidener and Bender of the grand jury were present when today's indictments were returned. Neither would make a statement. Bonds of $1000 each had been arranged for the six defendants, as is customary in misdemeanor cases. Those of Sidener and Geist will be signed by Nelson R. Dargatzis, president of the P. C. Taylor Fur Co., who was one of the signers on Sidener's other two bonds. The bonds of former Probate Judge Henderson and Lacy will be signed by Harry Troll, former Public Administrator. Bender's bond is to have the signatures of Mark D. Eagleton, one of his counsel, and William Molinsky, a friend. With the return of the conspiracy indictment the grand jury has completed its work, having previously indicted Circuit Attorney Sidener and Bender on a charge of compounding a felony, Sidener on another charge of "fraud in office," and John Rutherford on a charge of bribery. The charges against these three are felonies, punishable upon convictions by terms of from two to five years in prison. The "fraud in office" charge against the Circuit Attorney, upon conviction, would automatically remove him from office and deprive him of the right to vote or hold office in Missouri.

The new grand jury, to be impaneled Monday by Circuit Judge Lashly, will continue the investigation into the conduct of the Circuit Attorney's office, under the direction of Attorney-General Gentry and Special Prosecutor Lashly. Gov. Baker, who directed the continuation of the inquiry, especially asked for an investigation of the Lem Motlow murder case and the Forrest Ferguson embezzlement and credit fraud cases and also of the failure of the Circuit Attorney to prosecute defendants found over after preliminary hearing by the Court of Criminal Correction.

Custody Motion Held Up. Attorney-General Gentry announced today on a motion which he has prepared, for filing in court, asking for the suspension of Circuit Attorney Sidener pending the disposition of indictments returned Tuesday charging Sidener with compounding a felony and with fraud in office.

Tax Board Nominations Before Senate. WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Senate failed yesterday at a 20-minute executive session to confirm the 16 nominations to the Board of Tax Appeals which had been sent back to the Finance Committee last week for further investigation. Objection has been raised to some of the appointees on the grounds that their previous service in the Internal Revenue Bureau would disqualify them from deciding appeals on cases which they had handled there. The Senate will reconsider the nominations again today.

W. A. ROCKEFELLER ON SUB-ARCTIC TRIP

He and Two Companions to Seek Eskimo Relics and Bird Life.

By a Lensed Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, June 5.—William A. Rockefeller, son of the late William G. Rockefeller, is heading an expedition of three men which is seeking Eskimo relics and specimens of bird and animal life in the sub-Arctic regions.

The adventurers are already headed for Mattice on the Mississippi River, Ontario, where they should arrive today. They plan to push on down the Mississippi to Hudson Bay, with a stop at Moose Factory, James Bay. It was at Mattice that the three missing navy balloons—Lieuts. Hinton, Klor and Farrell—found civilization more than five years ago, after their experiences in the frozen North.

With Rockefeller, who is understood to be financing the expedition, are John T. Rowland, historian and navigator, and Raymond B. Potter, ornithologist of the American Museum of Natural History, which is to be the recipient of whatever specimens of bird life Rockefeller's expedition brings back.

Rowland is on the staff of the Scientific American. Both young Rockefeller and Rowland were with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell's Labrador mission in 1915. Rockefeller was then 15 years old.

Mrs. Rockefeller said last night that her husband had never before been to Hudson Bay where the party will spend the summer. The three men left New York Tuesday without fuss or press-agenting.

If it hadn't been for the arrival of a 22-foot freight canoe in Mattice on Tuesday, it might have been a long time before news of the expedition leaked out. But the canoe with two outboard motors and a sail arrived at Mattice the day that Rockefeller and his fellow explorers slipped out of this city. And it is in this canoe that Rockefeller, Rowland and Potter plan to make the 120-mile trip down the rapid and dangerous Mississippi to Moose Factory unless a small schooner can be obtained. Rowland, who outlined the plans of the expedition, was interviewed just before the three left Montreal for Mattice.

Russell Thaw Also Is Present; Mother Denies Boy Evaded Hotel Bill.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 5.—Harry Thaw, Evelyn Nesbit and Russell Thaw had dinner together last night in Miss Nesbit's apartment. Harry Thaw and Miss Nesbit made vigorous denials that Russell had evaded a hotel bill in Chicago.

"Russell has not been out of Atlantic City since last January," said Miss Nesbit. "He is a mere schoolboy; he has never been to the Congress Hotel in his life and he has never caused me or anybody else a moment's trouble."

Harry Thaw said that he had visited Miss Nesbit and her son because of the distress occasioned to them by published accounts of a youth who registered recently at the Congress as "Russell Thaw."

As to Harry's visit, Miss Nesbit said: "We are just good friends; that's all. We've buried the hatchet and are smoking the pipe of peace."

BATHTUB CASE APPEAL FILED
Carroll Defense Raises 34 Points in Assignment of Error.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 5.—The appeal of Earl Carroll from his conviction of perjury was filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today by his counsel yesterday. The defense contends that the Court which sentenced Carroll to himself had held as immaterial the counts on which the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Both these counts related to the girl in the bathtub episode. Thirty-four points, many of a highly technical character, are raised in the assignment of error. Carroll was sentenced to a year and a day in Federal prison.

FOUR MEN ARRESTED IN MONTEVIDEO BOMB CASE

No One Injured by Explosion in Entrance Hall of U. S. Legation.

By the Associated Press. MONTEVIDEO, June 5.—Four men of alleged "advanced ideas" are under arrest charged with complicity in the bomb explosion Friday morning in the entrance hall of the American Legation, which demolished the ceiling of the hall directly under the office of U. S. Grant Smith, the American Minister. The men denied the charges. No one was injured by the explosion, although the streets were filled with passersby and the missiles contained large quantities of lead, iron, steel, wire and screws. The authorities were still attributing the outrage to extremist sympathizers with Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who are under conviction for murder in Massachusetts. Prior to the bombing, handbills were distributed. They dealt with the Massachusetts case and announced that "North American justice is soon to commit the most horrible of crimes."

The handbills, signed by "the committee of bankers," added: "All is not lost if we unite our forces and realize a last effort so that none of us may be termed cowards." They exhorted the workers to participate in all demonstrations which Uruguayan labor might make on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti.

In the home of one of the detained men the police found fuses and other paraphernalia used in the manufacture of explosives. In the quarters of another, books on chemistry were seized. Two of these books collected data for the preparation of bombs.

An assistant to the State's Attorney.

Assessing that evidence showed the existence of a mob directed by Maj. M. J. McLean. The jurors found conditions greatly aggravated prevalent impression that McGinnis was a victim of a conspiracy to win freedom for convicted administration of and parole laws. The disclosure also cost the lives of McGinnis and his companions, one known to as a beer runner.

The sealed lips of gangsters the jury, prevented the so-called McGinnis murder and other charges that the root cause even.

The grand jury said the responsibility for failure to prevent the McGinnis murder could not be placed upon the authorities as there is such widespread opinion of the Volstead act. "The murder of young McGinnis," the report said, "was a price to pay for a mob sentiment. If that sentiment, aroused, will and will remain active of the public officials, who are all that is humanely to meet the situation, the will be satisfactory."

Commending the law enforcement activities of the city, the report censured "selfish reform organizations that know not respect the law are not disturbed by its sincerity." It referred to a "group that recently in Washington with a common plan to make a general election of individuals, groups and newspapers which only 'baseless and pernicious' claims when actuated only by ego or political motives."

ROCKEFELLER TELLS STORY OF CONDUCTOR WHO TRIED TO APOLOGIZE TO WOMAN

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 5.—JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER tells the following story of his recent trip home from the South.

On the train was a woman who was pestering the conductor with questions. She became a great nuisance and he became disgusted. Finally she said: "Conductor, why is it that you wave your hand to the engineer when you want him to start, instead of pulling the bell rope?"

"Why," replied the conductor, "when I wave my hand it means get the hell out of here." As the conductor returned to the train a man who had heard the remark said: "You should not have talked that way to that woman. She is the wife of one of the directors of your road."

"Pshaw," said the conductor. "I guess I had better go back and apologize." In a few minutes he returned and the man said to him: "What did she say when you apologized?"

"She said she didn't say anything," he just waved her hand."

"HINDU MESSIAH" AND PATRONESS IN LONDON

Mrs. Besant's Indian Teacher Expected to Visit United States Soon.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, June 5.—The young Indian teacher Krishnamurti who has been surrounded by much mystery since his childhood and has been hailed as the new Messiah in some quarters is now in London with his patroness, Mrs. Annie Besant, president of the International Theosophical Society.

Krishnamurti, it has been reported recently, expects to visit the United States soon, first going to Italy for a period of rest and study.

Mrs. Besant has reiterated her statement given to the Associated Press at Madras, India, last January that she never applied the term "Messiah" to Krishnamurti. She declared, however, that she believed in a great teacher through which a great civilization would reveal a new civilization.

Mrs. Besant and Krishnamurti are at the home of friends in Wimbledon common. The young Indian, she said, would not address public meetings in London, but may speak at some private gathering.

Has Beautiful Face. "I have never used the term 'Messiah' in describing this young Hindu teacher," Mrs. Besant said. "It is pure invention to call him by that name. I believe for the great world teacher, of whom I have talked for years, will reveal a new civilization."

Krishnamurti, she said, belongs to a high caste Hindu family and is about 39 years old. "He has a winning, simple personality and a very beautiful face," Mrs. Besant added.

Telling of revelations which Krishnamurti has reported to his followers, she said, she heard a musical piece as a single impression and later he put it into notes. Tennyson, too, experienced states of that kind. All geniuses of the world have experienced kinds of conscious inspiration.

"On one remarkable occasion Krishnamurti suddenly spoke with a different voice as though some unseen power was actually speaking verbally through him. This kind of communication may develop later. Meantime I regard him as a medium of the Great World Teacher."

ROCKEFELLER, NEAR 87, 'GIVES HEALTH RECIPE'

Never Worry and Don't Overeat, He Says—Still Plays Good Golf Game.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 5.—John D. Rockefeller returned to Pocantico Hills from Lakewood, N. J., a few days ago and his friends say he is playing a strong game of golf. One who played with him today said: "I never saw Mr. Rockefeller play a better game than he has since his return from the South. Why, he made 44 on the nine holes this morning and beat me. I'll say that he is playing the game for a man who will be 87 next month. His health appears to be splendid."

Telling the secret of how he keeps in such good health, Rockefeller said to a friend recently: "I never worry. The days of worry are over for me. I don't let anything bother me. It is true that I am saddened now and then by the death of an old friend, but I make new ones and people are very kind to me. Then again I keep cheerful. It is a great help to good health. I am cheerful. There is enough trouble in the world and if I can spread a little sunshine it helps me and I hope it helps others."

Careful but Not on a Diet. Asked about his diet, Rockefeller said: "I am not on a diet. I eat what I like, but I always eat moderately. Overeating is bad for anyone. I discipline myself to eat sparingly and I have found that it pays. Then again I never get up from the table right after a meal. I always sit at the table for a time. I never hurry my meals and I'm never in a hurry to leave the table. It's not good for the digestion. If people would use common sense in eating they wouldn't have much trouble with their stomachs."

Rockefeller is still giving away his money, he said. He hands out usually with the remark: "I hope you won't take offense if I offer you a little something."

HOUSE PASSES RIVER BILL WITH MANY AMENDMENTS. Bitter Filibuster Ends With Vote of 219 to 127; Illinois River Plan Included.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 5.—An omnibus rivers and harbors bill brought before the House last week as a $35,000,000 proposal, was passed by the House yesterday with 20-odd additional projects greatly increasing the total of its possible authorizations after surviving one of the bitterest filibusters in recent years. Estimates of the total ranged from $52,000,000 to $90,000,000.

By a vote of 219 to 127, the measure was sent to the Senate retaining all of its original 150 projects, including those for Illinois River development, resurvey of the All-American Canal route across New York State, and Government purchase of the Cape Cod Canal for $11,500,000.

HUSBANDS CAUSE POLICE RAID ON WOMEN GAMBLERS

20 Found Playing for Heavy Stakes in New York Apartment.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 5.—Acting on complaints of several husbands, detectives today raided an apartment in the Bronx, and found more than 20 well-dressed women, said by the police to have been assembled about gambling tables, playing for heavy stakes.

The women became panic-stricken when the detectives entered, leaving them to be robbers. When informed of the raid's mission, they became even more frightened, fearing arrest. They were allowed to depart, however, and only the alleged proprietor of the apartment was held.

CAPTAIN DEVALIN ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF DRUNKENNESS. No Announcement Made by Court as to Alleged Improper Liquor Withdrawal.

By the Associated Press. NORFOLK, Va., June 5.—Capt. Charles M. Devalin, commandant of the naval hospital at Portsmouth, was acquitted by a court-martial yesterday of charges of drunkenness at a dance, authorizing improper use of a Government motor truck and having liquor in his possession at the hospital.

The court, however, made no announcement as to its findings on a specification alleging he had caused five and one-half quarts of liquor to be withdrawn from the naval hospital stores for beverage purposes. Official confirmation could not be obtained as to whether this action meant an adverse verdict with respect to the one count.

The court heard conflicting testimony of naval officers, much of it centering on a Halloween party at which Capt. Devalin attended costumed as a Scotch bagpiper.

WRIGHT MAKES WIFE $125-A-MONTH OFFER

Architect Says He Is Willing to Pay if She Will Cease Assaults on Taliesen.

By the Associated Press. SPRING GREEN, Wis., June 5.—A monthly check for $125 is the writ of amicitiae offered by Frank Lloyd Wright, architect, to his estranged wife, Miriam Noel, here in an effort—a vain one so far—to gain admission to his Taliesen estate.

Resting here from the rigors of her two futile assaults on the gates of Wright's estate, Mrs. Wright has been apprised by County Prosecutor Boardman that her husband will give her $125 a month for her support if she will abandon efforts to obtain shelter under his roof.

And, although the woman has said she would not accept a settlement, she is considering going back to Madison and taking an apartment, she indicated after she had received definite news of her husband's offer.

Mrs. Wright plans to sue in Illinois for separate maintenance, she said, whether or not she forces her entrance to Wright's home by court procedure.

The architect, explaining his offer to provide for the wife who thwarted his effort to divorce her, recently said he would support her, but that "there is no place for her in my home where her real contribution has been only constructive sabotage for 10 years."

Guard for Massachusetts Governor. BOSTON, June 5.—A Sergeant of the State Police Patrol today was assigned to duty at the office of Gov. Fuller in the State House. While no explanation was made, it was inferred that the guard was assigned as a measure of precaution following recent demonstrations by radical sympathizers of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder.

Browns, With 7 Victories Out Of 9 Games, Face Real Test in Series With Strong Athletics

Sisler's Men, During Present Home Stand, Have Winning Record of .778—Southpaw Tom Zachary Advances to Post of Leading Pitcher by Winning Fifth Victory.

By Jack Alexander.

Having won seven out of nine games from Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, for a percentage of .778 on the home stand, the Browns today enter into the real thick of the battle when the Philadelphia Athletics, vanguard of the impending invasion of the Eastern teams, set foot on Sportsman's Park.

After the Athletics have played three games, Boston, the only team in the league under the Browns, will furnish relief for four days, followed by a 4-game series with the rampaging Yankees and a similar engagement with Washington. Then the Browns go around the circuit again.

The Eastern contingent, with the exception of Boston, being the stronger end of the sketch, it should be easy to tell by June 20 whether the Sisler men have meant anything by their present winning streak or not.

Fifth Victory for Zachary.

Yesterday Tom Zachary, aided by timely errors by Chicago players and sterling defensive work by the Browns, won his fifth victory in 12 starts. The score was 3 to 0 and evened the two-game series with the White Sox.

Jim Edwards hurled more effective ball than the Browns veteran but whenever his mates tried to score, the Brown infield promptly sat down on the proposition with a double play or some similarly disconcerting move. Five times in the first five innings, the Sox put men on base but failed to score. After four innings, in which the Browns had five clean outs, Zachary bore down and held them hitless for the remainder of the game.

Browns Held to 4 Hits.

Edwards allowed only four hits, George's single in the seventh scored McManus from second base being the only one untouched by human hands. The Browns scored earlier.

PARIS, June 5.—"Helen will be able to play tennis in six weeks," Mrs. Willis, mother of the American champion, told the Associated Press today.

"But," she added, "that, unfortunately, will be too late for Wimbledon. Helen is doing so well that she will be able to leave the hospital in two weeks, but she will not play before she returns to the United States."

This would seem to indicate that Mrs. Willis is of the opinion that Helen will be able to defend her American championship in August. In the opinion of followers of tennis here, Miss Molla B. Mallory, former American champion, will take the place of Miss Willis in the Wimbledon cup matches in England. Mrs. Mallory already is in England.

$137,000 ROBBERY ON SHIP

Grudge Against U. S. Said to Have Caused Ex-Convict to Steal.

HOBOKEN, N. J., June 5.—A grudge against the United States prompted Albert Rosenberg, stowaway on the United States liner George Washington, to loot the ship's vault of currency and checks worth $137,000, Federal officers say. Rosenberg and Frank Rara, seaman, were in the brig in manacles when the vessel arrived yesterday.

Although the robbery was conducted shortly after the liner began its eastward journey, it took eight days to find where the loot was hidden. It was found in the steel jacket of a smoke stack. Officials said Rosenberg had told them that he had served two years in Atlanta penitentiary and had decided to collect $2,000,000 in revenge for his imprisonment. Rara was charged with having been an accomplice.

FORMER PASTOR IN JAIL AWAITING FRAUD SENTENCE

William E. Rutledge, 64, Found Guilty of Mis-
using Mails in Oil Stock Sales.

COURT TO FIX PENALTY MONDAY

Hundreds of Ministers Lost Savings by Investing in Company Formed by Preachers' Magazine Editor.

Sentence will be pronounced
Monday by Federal Judge Paris on William E. Rutledge, editor of the Preachers' Magazine, who was arrested yesterday afternoon by a FBI agent in Federal Court of using the mails to defraud in the sale of oil stock.

There were five counts against Rutledge at the start of the trial,
but Judge Paris dismissed one because the case went to the jury.
Another count was not sustained by the jury. The maximum penalty on each charge is five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Still protesting that he had no
fraudulent intentions when he sold the mails to sell $258,000 in oil stock to 1500 clergymen and other laymen who read his magazine, Rutledge was taken to city jail to spend the week-end. As executive treasurer and trustee of the $100,000 Economy Oil Co., which had offices in his residence at Kirkwood, Rutledge drilled numerous wells in Kentucky, Tennessee, Texas and Arkansas, most of them dry and none productive enough to pay expenses.

Lots of Faith—Little Luck.
It appeared that Rutledge had lots of faith and little luck. He maintained that he, as well as his shareholders, had lost everything.
He was unable to pay for attorneys to defend him or witnesses to sue for him. Accordingly, Judge Paris appointed two lawyers to defend him and had witnesses summoned for him from various parts of the Government's jurisdiction.

The Government's case was based on Rutledge's oil propaganda published in the Preachers'
Magazine, next to sermon outlines and in circulars. The Government declared that Rutledge's
"wildcat" wells were not where he claimed them to be, did not produce as much as he represented and did not produce as much oil as he claimed. His forecasts of dividends of 100 per cent and more did not materialize, and it was shown that the 2 per cent dividend which he did pay was not paid by Rutledge.

Rutledge's wife and daughter,
Mrs. Lulu H. Pearey, were in court with him when the verdict was returned. Mrs. Rutledge wept and was put on the back by the defendant, who retained his composure.

Two Previous Indictments.
Rutledge, now 64 years old, has been at odds with the postal authorities. In 1904 he resigned the pastorate of the Second Baptist church at St. Louis to devote his time to the Weekly Messenger, in which he denounced gamblers and saloon keepers. One issue, containing an attack on a candidate for Sheriff, mysteriously disappeared from the East St. Louis postoffice. Rutledge charged the disappearance with the postoffice
authorities and demanded an investigation, which was granted without result. Publication of the editorial led to two assaults on Rutledge,
one on the streets and one in his office.

Twice Rutledge was indicted on charges of using the mails to defraud. He was convicted in 1910 and sentenced to prison for 18 months. He was released on condition of paying $1000. He was again indicted in 1915 on charges
of using the mails to defraud in connection with subscriptions to his paper. He was released on condition of paying $1000. He was again indicted in 1915 on charges
of using the mails to defraud in connection with subscriptions to his
paper. He was released on condition of paying $1000.

Last September Rutledge and a half-brother, telephone operator
George Duggan, were arrested in an apartment in San Antonio. They were charged with failing to deliver the mail. A new trial was granted on the ground of insufficient evidence, and the case was dismissed. In 1918
Rutledge, who had moved to Kirkwood, where he was publishing the Preachers' Magazine, was indicted on a charge of failing to deliver the mail. He was acquitted on an instructed verdict.

SENATE COMMITTEE UPHOLDS DRY ORDER

Finds Court Decisions Sustain
Use of State Officers as Federal Enforcement Agents.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—A Senate judiciary sub-committee today divided four to one in upholding
the legality of President Coolidge's executive order authorizing the employment of State officers as Federal prohibition enforcement agents.

Chairman Cummins and Senators Borah, Lodge, and Goff, West Virginia, Republicans, and Walsh (Dem.), Montana, held that the order was legal. Senator King (Dem.), Utah, contended that the President acted without legal authority.

The subcommittee will make its report to the entire committee
Monday, and Senator Cummins hopes to report to the Senate on the same day.

Senator King said he would submit minority views. He is the author of the resolution under which the subcommittee made its inquiry.

Members of the committee called attention to the fact that game wardens and others hold both Federal and State positions. They have found several court decisions and executive orders to support their position.

The subcommittee did not consider the wisdom of the policy of employing State officers as prohibition agents, as it was asked merely to inquire into the question of legality.

JUDGE DEFENDS ATTITUDE OF PRESS ON CRIME NEWS
Disagrees With Grand Jury Report That Too Much Notice Was Given Criminals.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 5.—King's County Judge Vause sharply disagreed yesterday with an opinion expressed in a presentment handed to him by the May grand jury to the effect that one of the "outstanding causes" of the increase of crime among the young seems to be newspaper methods of treating crime stories.

"Evidently there is an increasing amount of crime among our younger generation," the grand jury presentment read, "and one of the outstanding causes seems to be that the headlines in our newspapers seem to make heroes of some of these so-called supercriminals—
for instance, such criminals as Whittemore, Chapman and others—
giving them front page publicity.
It is the opinion of this body of grand jurors that if the public press would not lay such great stress on their activities the younger generation would not be led and encouraged to emulate their apparent brilliant achievements."

"I think the truth is just the reverse of this conclusion," Judge Vause said. "Certainly the cases of Whittemore and Chapman are not in point, for the latter, as newspaper reports showed, paid dearly for his criminal career, and the other is about to pay."
"I can think of no case where newspaper publicity has encouraged crime and very often the newspapers gave invaluable aid in capturing criminals. I have in mind one specific instance where a young man who had kidnapped a child sent her back home when he noted that every detail of his offense was being reported in the newspapers and followed with interest by the public."

FILING TIME FOR CANDIDATES ENDS WITHOUT SURPRISE

Five Women to Be Voted On for Offices in City
and State at August Primary.

PETERS QUILTS RACE FOR SUPREME JUDGE

His Withdrawal Leaves
Clear Field for Robert W.
Otto, Who Is Seeking Renomination.

Filing time for candidates for State and local offices to be voted for at the primary Aug. 2 closed
last night without any last-minute
surprises or late filings to materially affect the campaigns of the candidates who had announced for the offices.

The names of four women to be voted on in St. Louis or St. Louis County and one out in the State
appear on the list of candidates.
There are several others who are candidates for seats in the lower house of the Legislature, but those are filed locally in the counties.

Three St. Louis women candidates are Mrs. Madeline H. Mc-Naught of 426 South Second street,
for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Twelfth district;
Mrs. Charles L. Passmore of 5545
Cabanne street, for the House for the Republican nomination for the Legislature from the Fifth District
in St. Louis, and Anna M. Evans
for the Republican nomination for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, Division No. 1.

The President is agreeable that the commission should proceed with the inquiry as directed by the Senate with adoption of the resolution of Senator Trammell (Dem.), Florida, but he holds the view that the price advances have been due to the decreasing number of new oil fields opened up in recent years
and to the great increase in the use of gasoline.

Officials of the trade commission, which conducted a similar investigation in 1924, said they believed the new inquiry forwarded to complete this year. They will proceed with the experience gained in the previous investigation, covering developments since 1924. A letter from Gov. Byrd of Virginia, requesting the President to order the investigation, has been forwarded to Secretary Hoover for his views on the subject.

COMMANDER BYRD SAILS
FOR NEW YORK; DUE JUNE 21
Explorer Will Reassemble Plane
and Fly With Bennett to Philadelphia Exposition.

Copyright 1925 by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York Times Co.
NEW YORK, June 5.—Commander
Byrd's Arctic ship, the Chantier, sailed from London last night. The Polar explorer expects to arrive in New York on June 21. He gave a final party on board the vessel
before sailing to friends who had come to see him off. Among them were Capt. Watts, the American naval attaché, and his wife.

The Commander's stay in London has been a trying one for him. He has many friends in England and his exploit of flying to the North Pole has made many others seek his acquaintance. One invitation
he regretted foregoing was an address to the Royal Geographical Society, of which he is a fellow.

Upon his arrival in New York
Commander Byrd and Floyd Bennett, the pilot, will reassemble their plane, the Josephine Ford, and fly
to the exposition at Philadelphia.
Then they probably will enter the Polar endurance test and tour the country. The Commander is taking back with him Lieut. Balcom of the Norwegian Navy, who will study the problem of skis for him.
In order to land on Polar ice it is necessary to have better skis than any yet developed for airplanes.

Commander Byrd has not decided whether he will fly to the South Pole in the Josephine Ford. The flight there will be under circumstances very different from those in the Arctic and may require an other type of plane.

SEPARATION OF ARMAMENTS IS DEFERRED AT GENEVA
By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, June 5.—The first round of the battle to determine whether naval armaments shall be handled separately from land effectives when the time comes to convoke conferences on the limitation of armaments was fought here today without a decision being reached.

The American delegation remained silent but it is known that they support the British thesis.
After an hour's debate among the experts on the Military Subcommittee of the preparatory commission on disarmament, it was decided to postpone a decision on the French memorandum concerning the characteristics of all armaments is examined thoroughly.

LYDD GEORGE NOT TO ACCEPT LIBERAL PARTY DISMISSAL

Replies to Lord Oxford and Asquith
in Speech to Manchester Reform Club.

By the Associated Press.
MANCHESTER, England, June
5.—"I have no intention of accepting my dismissal from the Liberal party," declared David Lloyd George, Parliamentary Liberal
chief, in a fighting speech before the Manchester Reform Club today.
The speech was in answer to the attack by Lord Oxford and Asquith, head of the Liberal party, who virtually read Lloyd George out of the party, or at least out of his leadership in the House of Commons.

"If there is to be a split, let it be a real quarrel and not a rotten quibble," he declared. "Sir John Simon (one of the Liberal leaders) in a speech within the year
said that they thanked God for Mr. Lloyd George. He now says
he misled the Deity on that occasion. If they mean to drive a man out of the Liberal party because he erred on the side of conciliation with millions of British workmen in a great dispute—
then, on that proposition, I will fight right through to the end."

As long as the constituencies
have stuck to me for 26 years
and know me best because I am one of them—as long as they continue to return me to Parliament and there is breath in my body—I will be a Liberal member of the House of Commons with all that it means, and that it implies,
all that it involves," Lloyd George concluded.

The receivers are Charles G.
Revelle and Harvey G. Readey, and their attorneys are Conway Elder and Karl A. Korngold. They were appointed in November, 1924, by Circuit Judge Frey, who is Korn-gold's uncle.

Readey is Judge Frey's court stenographer. Readey and Korn-gold were appointed by Judge Frey
on his own initiative, and Readey
and Elder at the suggestion of Hyde, who now asserts that Re-velle and Elder performed almost all of the work.

Other Sets Aside Fees.
The fees were allowed
by Judge Frey, and Readey and Korngold were appointed on motion of Superintendent Hyde, who said
the allowances were excessive and that he had not been granted an opportunity to present his reasons for appointing Readey and Elder. He will have this opportunity Friday.

"Mr. Readey, I am informed, did nothing other than sign the report," Hyde said. He said also that Korngold had made one trip to Chillicothe, Mo., implying that was the extent of Korngold's performance.

Korngold, a young lawyer, residing at 5123 Cabanne avenue, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had made several trips as receiver's attorney and had attended to many details connected with the liquidation of the Andrew G. Reed Co. He was not as specific as Readey, a court stenographer for 29 years,
who resides at 3617 Vernon avenue.

BROOKHART AND CUMMINS MAKE FINAL PLEAS TO IOWA VOTERS
Speeches of Both Candidates Are Broadcast From Same Radio Station.

By the Associated Press.
DAVENPORT, Ia., June 5.—
Albert B. Cummins, veteran Iowa
Senator, and Smith W. Brookhart have put before Iowa voters, from the same radio station, their final appeals for the Republican senatorial nomination, which both seek at Monday's primary.

Speaking from radio station
WGO, Brookhart last night terminated a strenuous campaign which began the day he returned from Washington after being unseated from the Iowa Senate. He declared that he was a Democrat opponent in 1924.

Cummins' address was put on the air by remote control from the capital, where, the Senator said,
he has been hard at work at the post of duty which he seeks to fill for another six years.

The problem of farm relief
brought the two into diametric conflict, although both avowed their eagerness to see the farmer helped by Congress.

The Senator defended the transportation act of 1920, which he sponsored in the Senate, from attacks which Brookhart has levied against it throughout the campaign and before. He called an "unblinking falsehood" the statement attributed by him to Brookhart that the Cummins-Esch
law increased freight rates.

Predicting an early vote on farm relief, Cummins said: "It is impossible to predict just when the vote will come."

"I signed the reports, of course,
but I did more than that. I consulted with Judge Reville on various matters, reported at his office
every few days and once paid a stenographer to take my place. I could hardly come in on an insurance matter. I never failed to do anything asked of me, and Judge Reville never complained
and always was cordial."

"It is true that Judge Reville did not often seek my advice. In the last six months Judge Reville made over much of his work to his office associate, Emil E. Brill, and Judge Brill held an appointment in the case. Brill was sent to me by Judge Reville now and then, and when there was a plea trip out of town to be made, I filled in."

"Lately, Brill has been repeatedly requesting that I give him $1000 of my fee for the work he did, and he has said if I did not, Mr. Hyde might not approve of the fee allowances. Brill said Judge Reville had promised him $1000 of his fee.
I consulted Judge Elder and he told me not to give Brill a nickel.
I don't intend to."

"So far I have incurred a considerable expense as receiver and the fees haven't been paid. I think I am entitled to $7500."

Defends Frey.
Readey was admitted to the bar
about 25 years ago and was an active practitioner at one time. He and Judge Frey are personal friends of long standing.

Swedish Crown Prince Visits Edison

His interest in scientific achievement carried Crown Prince Gustavus Adolfus of Sweden to West Orange, N. J., the home of Thomas A. Edison. The visitor was most interested in the laboratories attached to the inventor's home.

Sherman is a deputy under Secretary of the Interior.
Why Readey Was Appointed.
"People who live in glass houses
shouldn't throw stones," remarked Korngold. "Superintendent Hyde should remember he was appointed to his present position by his brother, Gov. Hyde. I don't see why he should quit practicing law because my uncle is a judge."

In a letter to the Post-Dispatch
today, Judge Frey pointed out that Elder consented to the appointment of Korngold and Readey. As to his reason for appointing Readey
as receiver, in addition to Reville and Supt. Hyde, ex-officio as receiver, Judge Frey said Reville was then receiver of the Interstate Casualty Co., whose interests were adversely affected by the Reed Co.
liquidation. Readey, he said, was making it necessary to appoint."

Since making the appointment, a year and seven months ago, Judge Frey said, he has not discussed the matter with his successor in the claims division, Judge Ittner, and knows of nothing of what has transpired since then, except from hearsay.

Reville and Elder have been allowed partial fees of $10,000 and $7500, respectively, by Federal Judge Davis for services as receiver and receiver's attorney for the defunct Interstate Casualty Co., which they are liquidating
without co-receivers and attorneys.
In the American general case, Elder and Korngold petitioned Judge
Davis for a joint fee of $20,000.

The receivers differed as to their joint fee, Reville estimating $10,- 000 to $15,000 would be fair compensation, and Readey asking $15,000 to $20,000. Expert testimony was offered to support the claim. Judge Ittner allowed $50,- 000—$15,000 to be split by the two receivers and $15,000 by the two receivers' attorneys.

JUGO-SLAV DEBT SETTLEMENT IS APPROVED BY THE HOUSE
Plan Calling for Payment of $62-$50,000, by 1927 Is Ratified by Vote of 8 to 14.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The
last of the settlements negotiated
by the American Debt Commission, that with Jugo-Slavia, was approved yesterday by the House, 89 to 14, and sent to the Senate. The debt amounts to $62,850,000 and is to be paid by 1927. Representative Schaffer (Rep., Wiscon.), made
the only speech in objection, contending there had been no evidence of Jugo-Slavia's capacity to pay.

The House recently approved the French settlement and it is pending in the Senate, where it is expected to encounter determined opposition. The Senate has ratified
the other funding arrangements.

COOLIDGE SEES NO DANGER IN PANAMA GRANT

Spokesman Indicates Investigations of Concession to British Investors Have Been Made.

DEAL MADE MORE THAN YEAR AGO

New York Congressman Says Administration Is Not Vigilant Against Foreign Trade Advances.

By CHARLES MICHELSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—The White House spokesman has said that so far as this Government knew, there was nothing unusual or objectionable in the award by Panama of a concession to a British corporation of 5000 square miles of Isthmian territory, including two harbors, three or four hours steaming distance from the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal.

Critics of the Administration,
learning of the White House statement, yesterday recalled that when a Japanese corporation wanted to buy concessions contiguous to Magdalena Bay, our Government issued a statement that we would view with grave concern the possession of such territory by any foreign Government.

The spokesman said he understood some of the departments were investigating the activity of British corporations; but so far as the State Department knew, there was nothing objectionable. He may have referred to the State Department's inquiries or perhaps to the Department of Commerce, which presumably would be interested in the report that the concession, although purporting to be for the development of gold mines, really operates to prevent the establishment of American rubber plantations in the district.

Borah Offers Resolution.
Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, introduced his resolution calling on the State and War Departments, "if not incompatible with the public interest," to advise the Senate of all the facts and circumstances of which they have official cognizance relative to concessions secured by the British Government in the Republic of Panama, and the extent to which the British Government has secured control over the public land
and natural resources of Panama.
The resolution also asks for copies of any correspondence with the British Government on the subject. The Senate adopted the resolution today.

There is evident indignation on the executive side of the Government to stir the matter up. The attitude is that it is merely a mining concession in which the British were more awake than the American industrialists, but so was the Magdalena grant a mining concession.

In Congress there is a lively interest in the matter. As one of the Senators put it: "A mining concession that apparently embraces absolute control of pretty much all the resources of an American Government ought to be looked into."

Deal a Year Old.
Both the War and Navy Departments disclaimed having any information about the matter, and the fact that the State Department was inquiring into it.

It is known that the deal was made over a year ago, but this country did not hear anything about it until the concession was ratified by the Panamanian Congress a few weeks ago. Congressman Black (Dem.) of New York made the matter the occasion for an attack on the President and on Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

"The administration takes everything too easily," said Black in a prepared statement, "and is not vigilant against foreign trade advances. The reputation of Coolidge as a canny New Englander and of Hoover as an up-and-going super-Rabbi will suffer if they merely let their being outwitted by the British rubber invaders."

Most of the Congressmen who have become concerned over the matter attribute more importance to the alien possession of the Pacific harbors than to the economic features of the transaction.

"The concessionaires will own the property outright after 10 years,
and there is nothing to prevent their selling it to Japanese or any other who may desire to purchase."
Senator Borah explained that he specified the British Government in the resolution because that was the only way that he could reach the subject by such a move. He added that he had little doubt that if British interests had obtained concessions in Panama it was with the knowledge and approval of their Government.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Why Collier's Condemned Prohibition.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MY attention has been attracted to a letter published by you on May 23 in which the writer, Robertus Love, states that prior to our recent editorial advocating the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment "the entire editorial force of Collier's was changed." This statement is untrue.

Our editorial attitude toward prohibition has been governed by our observation of the facts and by nothing else. The testimony of the Federal enforcement officers before the Senate committee seemed to us to demonstrate conclusively the hopelessness of enforcement. Confronted with the choice between nullification and repeal, Collier's prefers repeal.

For a Traffic Court.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE traffic board of managers should at once require an automobile, street car and bus crews to sound their horns and bells at the approach of all street crossings. Under present conditions it becomes dangerous to cross streets, either as a pedestrian or automobilist. No machine should be allowed to travel more than 20 miles per hour within the city limits and cross the street at more than 10 miles. The sounding of the bell at each street crossing should be enforced to the letter.

Something drastic must be done. Since the closing of Lindell avenue all traffic has been thrown on Pine street. A bus loaded with passengers passed my residence, 442 West Pine boulevard, 50 feet in three seconds! It is impossible to cross the street in safety from 5 to 7 p. m.

The city needs a traffic court at once to enforce the traffic laws with a fine or workhouse sentence for violators.

NICHOLAS M. BELL.

Beautifying the River Front.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN regard to the plans for improving the river front, I would say that although those submitted so far have merit, they do not hit the mark of what is desired now as quickly as possible—that is, to develop and beautify the river front in the central part of the city. I would suggest the following plan to start with, which can afterward be enlarged or modified:

The city should condemn and acquire five blocks along the levee and running back to Main street, also two blocks from Main street to Third street, between Pine and Chestnut streets. All buildings should be removed from these blocks. Then there should be a water basin or lagoon dug out from the river to Third street in front of the Merchants' Exchange and from Pine to Chestnut streets, to be dug deep enough to allow the water from the river to flow in, even at its lowest stage to permit small sized boats to come in clear up to Third street, these boats to be used for transferring passengers to the large sized excursion boats at a small fare (say 5 cents each), thus doing away with the objectionable hill climbing and walking up and down unsightly narrow streets to the water front. These small excursion boats could also be used during the daytime for making trips for visitors up and down the river front, an hour or two, at a fare of 25 cents to 50 cents the round trip, similar to those at New York City.

The other blocks along the levee to be made into a park with fountains and statuary. It could also contain an aquarium, although there will be one in Forest Park, but we do not have to be a one-horse city all the time. There should also be a branch library located here for the benefit of the east end.

There will have to be bridges constructed over the lagoon at Second street and one at Main street, which should be ornamental and on a level with the street or nearly so, as the water level will be much lower, allowing head room for the small boats. There will also have to be a bridge and triumphal arch at the levee to take care of the north and south traffic and railroad tracks. The elevated railroad tracks can remain where they are, but should be somewhat ornamented.

There should be statues along the sides of the lagoon of rivermen like Mark Twain, Capt. Jas. B. Eads and other men of renown. Also statues to illustrate early history, such as Indians, cowboys, pioneers, buffaloes, ex-slaves, negro slaves, etc. St. Louis is sadder on statuary than any of our large cities. We should have more statuary at intervals all through the central part of the city from the levee up to Skinker road. The expense of all this should not be excessive as the property to be taken is not high priced.

A PROGRESSIVE.

The Wet-Dry Referendum.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN answer to C. A. Rowe's letter in this paper, I would say the voters of Missouri have a right to a referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment as to its repeal, but I claim they have no moral or any other right to sidestep the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment as set forth in the Volstead act. It would be cowardly to do so. J. B. COLE.

THE CITY'S INTEREST IN THE BRIDGE EXCHANGE DEAL.

When President Cotter of the Manufacturers' Railway published the proposed bill for the exchange of the municipal and Eads bridges and the improvement of terminal facilities, with a critical analysis of that measure, Harry Scullin, chairman of the Citizens' Committee, asked the public to withhold judgment because the bill was in tentative form, and had not been approved by the committee.

Since that time one meeting of the committee has been held, in the office of the Mayor. The meeting was a fiasco so far as a general discussion of the bill and efforts to change it are concerned. There were two protests offered against the approval of the bill, one by Mr. Chamberlain, representing the Merchants' Exchange, and one by J. Lionberger Davis, in a letter addressed to the committee.

Neither the Terminal Railroad Association, which is chiefly responsible for the pending bill, and is one of the interested parties to the contract, nor the chairman or any leading member of the committee has attempted to answer the objections urged by Mr. Cotter and similar objections that have been brought up in previous meetings of the committee.

Mr. Quincy has essayed to answer the objections, but in a superficial manner and with such manifest disregard for the actual provisions of the bill, as compared with the promises originally held out and embodied in the bill in vague form, that it was hardly worth considering.

It is necessary to go back to the origin of the movement for the exchange of bridges to find the real basis of the subsequent work to effect an agreement between the city and the Terminal Railroad. The whole object of the movement was announced to be the improvement of terminal facilities, to enable the railroads to handle the traffic passing through and entering St. Louis with expedition and economy. This was the announced purpose of negotiations between the city and the Terminal Railroad Association. A Citizens' Committee was appointed by the president of the Chamber of Commerce in July, 1920, six years ago. The first step was the appointment of an Engineers' Committee, to make a comprehensive study of the situation with a view to pointing out defects in the present terminal system and of suggesting remedies which would make the system efficient for the speedy and economical handling of traffic. The Engineers' Committee was composed of nine members, four representing the railroads, two the city, three the Chamber of Commerce.

The engineers made a thorough study of the terminal system. They submitted nearly two years later, in 1922, an excellent report on the situation, and that report pointed out the antiquated and complicated condition of terminals, constructed at haphazard, which prevented the speedy movement of cars and caused congestion and delays which greatly obstructed business, costly to the railroads and costly to shippers and damaging to the St. Louis gateway.

In a host of recommendations for the improvement of terminal facilities, to facilitate the movement of traffic, was the exchange of the Eads and municipal bridges. This exchange was designed to give the Terminal Railroad Association more convenient entrance to the city through the use of the railway deck of the municipal bridge, and to give the city the use of the railway deck of the Eads bridge for the entrance of street railways into the city through the tunnel, and the freedom of the vehicular deck, thus adding another free highway between East St. Louis and St. Louis for vehicles and pedestrians, in addition to the free deck of the municipal bridge.

The exchange of bridges was only part of the comprehensive scheme of terminal improvement. The whole system was to be improved. Those who had supported the free bridge and had fought the arbitrary tariff of the Terminal Railroad Association on St. Louis traffic were led to look with favor on the project as a means of perfecting the terminal system and accomplishing such improvements and economies as would offset the terminal monopoly, and ultimately lead to a reduction of charges; it certainly would speed up car movements. The failure to put the municipal bridge to work as a rail highway was a strong argument for the new arrangement.

Those who were admitted to the confidence of the committee, the whole proceedings being strictly secret and confidential, were taken up on a high mountain and shown a land of promise. They were given a view of the excellent engineers' report with its comprehensive recommendations. Diagrams were exhibited showing the substantial and costly improvements that were to be made, and the great saving in car movement and time that was to be accomplished.

We challenge any member of the committee to say that the proposed ordinance embodies any definite pledges to put into effect the major recommendations of the engineers. We shall not go into details at this time, but we do say that the bill is practically without definite pledges. Certain promises are made but the extent of the improvements is not defined, nor is the time in which the improvements are to be made fixed. They are subject to contingencies, depending upon their desirability and the consent of the railroads. There is one certain and definite thing provided for in the ordinance. That is the extension of specific franchises for Terminal Railroad tracks which are about to expire, and the exchange of bridges. The railroads got their bit in clear and definite terms.

In its present form, the ordinance would turn over the municipal bridge to the Terminal Railroad Association and upon its own terms, with its tariff fixed. Approaches for any independent railway could be built only with the consent of the Terminal Railroad Association, and the municipal bridge could be used by independent railways only on the terms of the association. It would be a costly handicap.

Grave doubts have been expressed as to the value of the railway deck of the Eads bridge and the tunnel to the city, and as to the power of the railroads to turn that bridge and the tunnel over to the city for uses differing from their original purpose. No less an authority than C. E. Smith, consulting engineer of the city, says that if the city has not the power to destroy or radically change the tunnel, it would be a perpetual obstacle to a subway.

We believe that the terminal system of the Terminal Railroad Association ought to be expanded and ought to be improved. We are willing to concede all reasonable facilities to that end. But we do not believe it should be enabled to cut out independent competitors from the use of the municipal bridge. We do not believe that the southern approach, approved by the people, should be abandoned, and all approaches made subject to the consent of the Terminal Railroad Association. That the present St. Louis terminal system needs improvement and extension is not open to question. The engineers settled that the terminal facilities of St. Louis should be doubled every 12 years.

The Terminal Railroad Association, the great railroads included in it, should of their own motion carry out the recommendations approved by their own engineers, without any bargain with the city. We are willing to give them the added utility of the municipal bridge. But it must be on fair terms. The people of St. Louis cannot afford to turn over the free bridge to the Terminal Railroad Association, the great combination of railways which has hitherto throttled St. Louis, except upon full compensation in added facilities and upon fair terms which will admit every other railroad on an actual equality with the association railroads.

If the proposed ordinance for the exchange of bridges does this, we cannot see it in the copy. It behooves the Citizens' Committee to revise this ordinance with the interests of the city as well taken care of as the interests of the railroads.

"MAKE THE WATER SAFE."

With 5000 signs posted by the St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross along the Meramec River, in its "make-the-water-safe" campaign for 1926, we ought to have few or no drowning accidents in this recreation area this season. The signs bear valuable warnings against carelessness and foolhardy methods on the river.

The Red Cross is doing commendable work, also, in supplying first instruction in swimming and life-saving and resuscitation, through its experts, with the co-operation of directors of pool in various educational centers. Lessons are to be given at the municipal pools.

The Red Cross appeals to St. Louisans to aid in this life-saving work, and asks heads of organizations to urge their employees to take the free lessons and to follow the safety rules. It is hoped in this way to increase the number of trained swimmers that the entire bathing strips on our nearby rivers will be made reasonably safe.

Abd-el-Krim should worry about the safety of his money chests. He can always command a fortune from the American movie magnates.

"TALES OF THE TURF" THAT AIN'T SO.

A writer in this week's Saturday Evening Post tells us some "Tales of the Turf." He starts out by telling us how Zev got his name. You remember Zev, of course, whose miserable fiasco in the Preakness in 1923 was redeemed a few days later when he galloped into the glory of a Kentucky Derby winner at the luscious odds of 40 to 1 for $2. How did Zev get his name? An expression of affectionate regard by the owner, Harry Sinclair, to his personal friend, "Mr. Zevinsky."

"Mr. Zevinsky!" Col. Bill by one stroke of an indolent pen is reduced to mistardom, while the orthographic gods throw fits at the presence of that delectable "r" in our hero's surname.

We introduce to the Saturday Evening Post America's Lord Chesterfield, a true cosmopolite, a familiar figure in Washington since the days of Cleveland, the stamp of the beau monde in every accent, gesture and mannerism, whose carving of a rosette is like a Swinburne melody, urbane, sagacious, mellow, Missourian by birth, Oklahomaan by adoption, Col. Bill Zevely, U. S. A.

Later in the narrative we come to the St. Louis cyclone, with the author's vivid personal recollection of that biowy matinee in 1906. Mislabeling a tornado a cyclone might perhaps be forgiven but when the Saturday Evening Post steals 10 years from our St. Louis storm of 1906 by thrusting it into the middle of Roosevelt's second term, is it not about time to quit?

We thought so, too.

THE SATURDAY CONFERENCE.

Mr. Antwine presided at the regular Saturday conference of the two-story thinkers held under the cartoon this morning. He wanted to say something about our time, which almost nobody ever discusses.

Mr. Antwine: It is one of the oddities of life that we are more interested in how other people lived before us than in how we live it ourselves. For instance, there is more interest in Tutankhamen than in Mr. Coolidge, though the influence of the latter upon our time is much greater.

Lord Howe Dumblebore, probably Tutankhamen seems more alive than Mr. Coolidge. Mr. Antwine: Perhaps. May I also say that there are archaeological expeditions working this summer among the ruins of Yucatan, whereas the ruins of our own republic are being explored by almost nobody but Senator Norris?

Good Reprint: Don't you think we could give Senator Reed a slight mention just at this point?

Socrates: Would it be pertinent to suggest that life is too near us in our own day for us to enjoy the perspective that we enjoy in time? We have just read that when the Norge rose to 3000 feet the whole glittering spectacle of the polar regions lay vividly revealed, even to the least glistening bit of ice. It is so with us. We see the ensemble from a distance.

Mr. Antwine: I know we do, but it seems to me we owe the men who founded the republic a greater interest in the way it is going. You don't suppose, do you, that it is a good thing to have a political party as dominant as the Republican party is, or that good can come of reducing every other party to the status of political hooliganism in the way it has happened?

Pinthourgos: Mr. Antwine is quite right. We have no political science, whereas the republic was fashioned by some of the most profound students of political science the world has ever known. It is quite true that when Congress meets the President reports upon the state of the union, but you would not say that is comparable to the work being done in Egypt or Yucatan?

Glaucon: By Jove, no!

Mr. Antwine: Thank you, Pinthourgos. You have it precisely. Thrasymachus: It is the will-nillness of government that you dislike. Mr. Antwine: Yes, I don't think we ought to turn it over to big business in the way we have done and then dismiss it from mind. That has been done before, and the consequences were precisely what the founders of our own Government had in mind when they placed control in our hands.

Polemarchus: You have convinced me. We ought to have an expedition start for Washington at once. Perhaps it could die up the Bill of Rights.

Editorial Writer: Or the Constitution. Mr. Antwine: I don't see why. Some archeologist has just located the field of Armageddon.

So, that having been agreed upon, the conference adjourned.

A Terre Haute man has had a telephone placed in his tomb so he will be able to call up the folks in case he wakes up and finds himself still in this world after all the reforms they are having in Indiana. He should have been a Missourian.

The Sikeston Standard says: "Take the Standard for a thrill, or go to the cemetery for a quiet evening with some other paper."

One of the favorite pastimes of our day is to undertake to say what Abraham Lincoln would think if he were alive now and Saint Paul would do if he were still among us. The latest attempt to decide either of these difficult problems is that of a Pennsylvania divine who says that if Saint Paul were alive today he would know Babe Ruth's batting average and the yardage gained by Red Grange, but would not know anything about boxing, wrestling or horse-racing. We have an idea that if Saint Paul were alive now and participated in sports he would be a golf player. He said: "This one thing I do," and that is all you can do and play a good game of golf.

Silk Socks and Peace.
THERE is one commonplace little pretty generally overlooked by alarmists who are perpetually talking about the probability of a war between the United States and Japan. That little bird is the silk worm. It constitutes one of the bulwarks of Japanese industry and wealth. At the same time it is the backbone and speak of American fashion. It may be ridiculous to refer to the abbreviated life of today's mode as a potent factor in political interests frequently threatened by the length garment has its claim to the short skirts demand silk hose. In fact, demand so many silk hose that the Japanese silk worms have been working overtime. Japanese labor has been getting increased employment, and Japanese commerce has been enjoying a healthy boom. The prosperity of the island kingdom is dependent upon our hosiery market. The about war in the face of these facts is talk foolishness. Japan is not likely to come very quarrelsome with us—silk cross each other, but nevertheless, the cotton and cotton stage a comeback at last.

ZODIAC.

A man in the jail at Billings, Mont., went crazy when the band met for practice in a room overhead. This reminds us of a notice printed in a Missouri paper some years ago. It said:

Warning—The village band meets tonight at the Town Hall.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

FLYING DOCTORS.

From the American Review of Reviews, June.

THE increased practicability and the airplane promises a solution for the problem of providing proper medical aid for a small population spread over an unbelievably large area, about that of the United States. According to Mr. H. C. Loeffler of the revision of the League of Red Crosses, written in the Red Cross magazine, "World's Health" (Paris), a marvelous idea is being brought about in the "black land" where previously one doctor cared for an area the size of Great Britain. With the coming of the flying doctor, new era has begun. Impassable roads, absence of bridges and the like no longer impede transportation, while the wide operation of the airplane has made possible the employment of physicians in sparsely settled territories which heretofore could not support a doctor. The act is as yet limited, but it is the aim of the Australian Island Mission, long instrument in supplying nursing homes in the bush, to extend the service. The region of the continent has been divided into districts. Flying doctors will be transported by airplane over regions with a of 200 miles, and it is hoped that a nurse can be stationed within 100 miles every family in the interior. A few of the development of the service by securing of bridges and inexpensive, less service, to be used by the comparatively poor bushman himself. Regular services already established will be in this connection. The mail airplanes carry dentists with their equipment to the bush.

John Held A Fashion Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Smart Afternoon Gown

JANE has a friend, Jane, who never fails to have on smart clothes. Pam has told me that Jane has very little to dress on, yet I am always impressed by the fact that she makes a so much better appearance than many people who have a far larger dress allowance. Today Pamnie and I had tea with Jane. She asked us up to her apartment, where she lives with her mother, and the tea and sandwiches she gave us were as palatable as her frocks are smart.

Jane was wearing a particularly nice black frock trimmed with old fashioned motifs of embroidery, and was glad when I heard Pam ask: "Jane, wherever did you get that charming frock?"

"I had been wanting to know what you thought of it," she said. "Why, I made it, of course," Jane answered. "You know I make practically all my things," she said.

We all agreed that this was the best of Jane's frocks, for she had distinctive frocks, for the medium-priced ones in the shops are so likely to be duplicated everywhere. For the same price, less, one can make a dress that is really different.

Then Jane went on to tell us the story of the dress.

"It was very funny," she said. "I had these bits of silver and gold embroidery for a long time. I looked them up once on a bargain counter simply because I thought they were attractive."

"I do that sometimes," Pam replied. "But often it takes me so long to find a use for such things, they are almost given up for the practice."

"Well, suddenly this Spring, the inspiration came to me," Jane said. "I bought a piece of black satin and some chiffon to go with it. I worked several afternoons at home, and this is the dress."

The shaped bits of embroidery are placed at the hips, just above the knees, and gathered panels that flew about becomingly when she walked. There were two others at the shoulder lines, and one at the front of the V neck, and another in the back. The neck was just the same way in the back as in the front.

I agreed that the frock was an ideal kind to have for after-dinner wear and informal dinners, and we went away wondering what if trimming we could find to make frocks somewhat similar to this.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

When It Curdles.

There is only one infallible way of getting curdled mayonnaise to "come back." Start all over again with another egg yolk, add a little oil to it and when it has thickened very gradually beat in the curdled dressing until it is all blended into the new.

Aluminum Ware.

There is nothing prettier than the kitchen pantry thoroughly equipped with all the necessary kitchen articles in bright, shiny aluminum. But it is not much credit to the woman who has aluminum vessels and allows them to become tarnished and blackened.

Scent Your Own.

So frequently the compact powder boxes, so popular with millinery, are not scented as she would like them. So she dampens the powder puff with the perfume she affects and places it back in her powder box. By the next time the lid is raised the powder has taken up the perfume and the result is to her fancy.

Is Beauty Your Hobby?

By MA BORI

TO my way of thinking, beauty and health as well as the few things so sad and lonely, and she still finds time to son without some hobby. Now, the woman who is busy all fall back upon and enjoy about necessary work may not I am moved to mention able to have a real garden, but cause I sometimes come to wonder how a few small pursuers of beauty as they ever beds will flourish with a pursuit of beauty as they are small amount of attention. Then there's the woman who is in a city apartment and who is quite busy looking after a really sad to me, and it is only to her music each day, and longer young. The woman who is better satisfied and more passed her first youth in a nursing person because of it. The young girl who works in an clothes and good looks if it is necessary to discover a different hobby from the moral of this is: If you have a hobby while you are pursuing of beauty that you will last after the first time of interest that is pleasant and youthful beauty has gone. You can easily take care of your grooming and your looks. Find your hobby and enjoy it. You can still have time to give your good looks and your other interests.

Children's Bedtime Story

Jimmy Skunk Was Right

You'll find through life there's nothing quite so pleasing as to prove you're right.
—Jimmy Skunk.

JOHNNY CHUCK had been having such a good time wandering about and doing just as he pleased that he had almost forgotten that he had ever had a home. But one day there seemed to be something wrong with everything. The weather was wrong to begin with. His food didn't taste right. He couldn't make up his mind where to go. He didn't want to play. The sun was too hot. Nothing was just right. As a matter of fact, the trouble was all with Johnny, but he didn't know it. He didn't know it until along came dancing a Merry Little Breeze and whispered into one of Johnny's little black ears.

"Hello, Johnny Chuck!" she called. "It's about time you came home!"

"You don't know what I saw this morning?" whispered the Merry Little Breeze. "I don't care what you saw," grumbled Johnny. "You ought to care," retorted the Merry Little Breeze. "Why? Why ought I to care?" Johnny demanded, and he did it in a very cross manner. "Because, Grumpy, what I saw belongs to you and you ought to care for it. It's a queer father that doesn't care for his own child."

"My children have all grown up and gone away," mumbled Johnny.

"Is that so?" cried Merry Little Breeze. "Well, Polly Chuck's haven't, if you have."

Johnny Chuck sat up very suddenly and very straight. "Polly Chuck hasn't any children. That is, she hasn't any babies," protested Johnny.

"Hush!" exclaimed the Merry Little Breeze. "Then whose was that that I saw on the doorstep of your old home this morning?"

Right then and there Johnny

Chuck knew what was the matter with him. He was homesick. He had had enough of wandering around. He wanted to see Polly Chuck, and though he wouldn't admit it, he wanted to see if Jimmy Skunk had been right. Jimmy Skunk had whispered to him that the reason Polly Chuck hadn't let him into the house was because she had a family down there and she didn't want him around while they were so little. Now the Merry Little Breeze had seen one of them out on the doorstep, so perhaps they were big enough for Polly to feel a little differently about them. Anyway, he would find out.

When Johnny drew near to his old home, he sat up every few feet and looked. At first he saw nothing on the doorstep and he was disappointed. But the next time he sat up to look there was a very funny, small person sitting up just as he was; and the next time he looked there were two; and before he had gone much farther there were three; and by and by there were four; and then there were five; and the next time he looked

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

Twilight.

EVER with twilight shadows something of beauty creeps, something of wonder quickens, stirring the soul's hid deeps. Day with its toil has left us, slowly the sunlight wanes; now of our restlessness striving only the joy remains. Only the gladness lingers, now as our labors cease; after the heat of struggle, sweet is the draught of peace. Hours that were filled with grasping after earth's yellow gold, can, with all greed forgotten, something of charm unfold. Shadows on shadows creeping; then, through the dusk, a star piercing with wistful wonder deeps where the shadows are. Ever with twilight's coming, beauty returns again, filling the world with splendor, stilling the day's dull pain. Ever with twilight shadows, toil and its tumult ends; out of night's star-strewn arches peace with the dusk ascends.

"Where are what?" retorted Polly. "Those—er—babies?" "Yours," retorted Polly. "Aren't they yours?" inquired Johnny, and looked foolish. "Well, they are ours, if that suits you better; and it is high time they had a father to help look after them," retorted Polly. "Oh," said Johnny, because he didn't know what else to say. He approached a little uncertainly. Polly reached out and rubbed her little black nose against his little black nose. And what, do you think? She rubbed away all that homesickness. "Let's go get some sweet clover," said Johnny. "Let's," said Polly.

Cocoanut Soup.
Grate the meat of a large fresh cocoanut. Add to it a quart of chicken broth that has been carefully made and the fat all removed. Simmer gently for 15 minutes, then put through a fine sieve and squeeze the cocoanut dry. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs and the juice of a lemon, stir in a double boiler until it is slightly thickened, add a little salt and pepper to taste. Add a spoonful of freshly boiled rice to each serving.

Canapes and Cold Soups.

COLD soups do not appeal on warm days. Grapefruit are a little out of season, so cold soups and canapes must take the place. The canapes are easily made and the toast on which they are spread should be delicately made after the crusts are removed. If mayonnaise is used, avoid butter, as fats are heating. For shrimp canapes open, drain and break in halves a small can of shrimp. Take the little intestines from the back of the shrimp and break it open lengthwise. Add a tablespoonful of French dressing, and marinate the shrimp in it for 20 minutes. Then arrange them on the toast rounds, add a teaspoonful of chopped celery leaves and mask with a little white mayonnaise. Garnish with a stuffed olive.

melted butter and a little currant jelly. Spread on lightly buttered toast rounds and garnish with a spray of fresh watercress. A fruit canape may be made of fresh fruits cold and inviting as an appetizer. Take one banana, eight fresh strawberries and one apple. Chop all together season with a little salt, a chopped mint leaf, a little sugar, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and just enough white mayonnaise to moisten. Spread on the four toast rounds and garnish with a whole berry rolled in powdered sugar and with its hull left on. The cold soups include chicken and clam broths, topped with a spoonful of whipped cream. Jellied tomato soup, jellied calf's foot broth, consommé, fresh green pea cream soup, and the different fruit soups.

There is nothing of which man are so fond, and withal, so careless, as life.—La Bruyere.

"Dry Questionnaire Sent to Republican Candidates for Senate."

"H" either fears his fate too much,

Or his deserts are small. Who dares not put it to the touch And gain or lose it all."

How dry are you? What would you do

If you should be elected? Or do you think a little drink Should never be rejected?

Don't stall and wait, equivocate, Or hem and haw about it; Don't hesitate your views to state,

But from the housetops shout it.

QUITE SO.

It is said that Pennsylvania is so wet that Mr. Vare will make the race for the Senate in a pair of rubber boots.

In the meanwhile Senator Borah has definitely gone over to the dry side and taken a seat right next to the water cooler.

"Beveridge Assails Coolidge Dry Order."

A man hearing that name naturally would. Spell it with an "A" Sammy.

"Pool Rides Four Winners at Fairmount."

Looks like Fairmount would be a good place to go to play Pool.

The logical place to play Pool would be in a pool room, but there isn't any such animal.

Pigs, fogs and wind all constitute armaments, according to the Dutch. It might be feasible to pull the pigs' teeth, but we don't see what could be done about the fog and wind.

However, if the Dutch are not trying to kid somebody, why not insist upon including wooden shoes?

The man on the sandbox says it isn't much of a trick to make money, but it is a wise guy who can keep the damage suit lawyers from taking it away from him.

See where Black Maria and Dark Phantom ran one-two in the Kentucky Oaks. It was a good day for dark horses.

We had a kind of a hunch that Black Maria would be there in the pinch.

THE GREAT MAILS.

THERE once was a fellow named Duster.

Who came from the minors with luster;

'Twas the great pitcher Mails, Who was harder than nails,

And always some courage could muster.

But, it happened this season that Walter,

On certain occasions would falter; So he packed up his grip

And he then took a trip And he heard nothing more

From our Walter.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 5.—The immediate purpose of the proposition to be held in this county is the nomination of candidates for the United States Senate, but the consequences of a victory for Coolidge would be a disaster to the state. The primary purpose of the proposition is to determine whether or not Coolidge will be the nominee for a third term.

A victory by Smith W. I. over Senator Albert B. Cummins would be a disaster to the state. The primary purpose of the proposition is to determine whether or not Coolidge will be the nominee for a third term. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

The fact is that the proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

In Pennsylvania a few weeks ago was the spectacle of a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

The fact is that the proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

In 1924 Coolidge carried a tremendous majority. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

Four Reasons for Change. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

The answers are given in the order of importance. The proposition is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.

1.—Continuance of the cultural depression, and the difference manifested by the Coolidge and his New England advisers toward all means to relieve it.

2.—The unseating of Brookhart and the apparent widespread conviction that the administration connived at the overthrow of the Iowa election to accomplish it.

3.—Resentment against the action of the Federal Reserve act, and an apparent belief that the act is employed mainly for the benefit and profit of the bankers.

4.—Resentment against high rates, and the belief that the rates are the result of the Coolidge law.

5.—Dawning conviction that the tariff operates almost entirely to the benefit of manufacturers and against the consumer.

Coming now to the immediate question of the proposition, it is a referendum on the question of whether or not the state should support Coolidge for a third term.
